

Building Trust Influencing Policies Delivering Solutions

The EastWest Institute is an independent international nonprofit dedicated to making the world a safer and better place. Thanks to our extensive global network, EWI is able to convene leaders from government, business and civil society in informal settings to discuss the world's most intractable security issues. The purpose is to build trust, influence policy and deliver innovative solutions.

This year, EWI celebrates its 30th anniversary. Founded by John E. Mroz and Ira Wallach at the height of the Cold War, EWI initially worked to build bridges between Russia and the United States. After the fall of the Berlin Wall, EWI worked to foster economic stability in the region, encouraging cross-border cooperation and training strong leaders for democratic states. In the past decade, EWI's operations have expanded to China, Southwest Asia and the Middle East.

EWI is now continuing its efforts to build bridges among key global powers—China, Russia, and the United States, among others. It also is confronting regional challenges such as relations between Afghanistan and Pakistan. Looking to new security concerns, EWI launched the Worldwide Cybersecurity Initiative, including a summit series that brings together top private and public experts from the Cyber40 countries to develop new solutions for protecting the world's digital infrastructure.
